- B) The World Trade Organization was formed at the Bretton Woods conference.
- C) The General Agreement on Tariffs and Trade created the World Trade Organization in the negotiations and treaty known as the Uruguay Round.
- D) The World Trade Organization has no power to resolve trade disputes and to enforce their resolution.

Answer: C

Topic: The IMF, the World Bank, and the WTO

14) Having MFN status means that the country is getting the most favorable trade terms possible with a trading partner.

Answer: FALSE

Topic: The IMF, the World Bank, and the WTO

15) A country experiencing a debt or currency crisis would contact the World Bank.

Answer: FALSE

Topic: The IMF, the World Bank, and the WTO

16) The World Bank was created as a result of the Bretton Woods conference and was originally focused on the reconstruction of Europe after World War II.

Answer: TRUE

Topic: The IMF, the World Bank, and the WTO

17) The IMF, because it can force nations to take loans and bail out packages, has more power than other international governmental organizations dealing with the global economy.

Answer: FALSE

Topic: The IMF, the World Bank, and the WTO

18) The World Bank formed the World Trade Organization when it became clear that to alleviate poverty in developing nations, agricultural trade barriers were going to have to be reduced.

Answer: FALSE

Topic: The IMF, the World Bank, and the WTO

19) A nation's votes at the IMF are proportional to its population.

Answer: FALSE

Topic: The IMF, the World Bank, and the WTO

20) MFN status means that a trading partner is getting the best trade deal possible given current national trade policies.

Answer: FALSE

Topic: The IMF, the World Bank, and the WTO

21) WTO talks in the late 1990s led to openings in both financial services and telecommunications.

Answer: TRUE

Topic: The IMF, the World Bank, and the WTO

22) Describe the primary functions of the World Bank, the IMF, and the WTO. When was each of these organizations formed?

Answer: The IMF and the World Bank were outlined at the Bretton Woods Conference and began operations at the end of World War II. Both function as banks for national governments, with the IMF playing the role of lender of last resort and the World Bank focusing its loans on economic development. A nation facing a payments crisis can contact the IMF for a loan, but it may have to change its domestic policies as part of the price of the loan package. The World Bank initially focused its lending on rebuilding war-torn areas, but then broadened its focus to development. Only developing countries can borrow from the World Bank.

The World Trade Organization was not formed until 1994. An international organization to establish rules related to world trade, business practices, and international investment was proposed at the end of World War II, but was not created. A series of trade negotiations that focused primarily on lowering tariffs were launched. A number of rounds of GATT were completed and ultimately the round known as the Uruguay Round led to the formation of the WTO. The WTO focuses on the multilateral resolution of trade disputes and on continued negotiations to further reduce barriers to trade.

Topic: The IMF, the World Bank, and the WTO

23) What is MFN status? How does the WTO reconcile the principle of equal treatment with the preferential treatment created by regional trade agreements?

Answer: MFN status is basically that you will treat all nations participating in the agreement the same. A regional trade agreement creates preferential treatment for nations that are participants. (For example, because of NAFTA, Mexico and Canada get more preferential terms with the United States than other WTO members would.) The WTO recognizes that regional agreements destroy some opportunities for trade (by making nonmembers face higher barriers than members), but believes they create more trade between participants than they destroy. The regional agreements also allow nations to try out new arrangements that may later be adopted more broadly.

Topic: The IMF, the World Bank, and the WTO

24) Trade policies in which industries have been the most contentious in the Doha Round?

Answer: Agriculture and services

Topic: The IMF, the World Bank, and the WTO

25) Which round of GATT first addressed subsidies?

Answer: The Tokyo Round

Topic: The IMF, the World Bank, and the WTO

26) What result of the Uruguay Round was the most significant for global trade?

Answer: The creation of the WTO

Topic: The IMF, the World Bank, and the WTO

27) How is the IMF funded?

Answer: It collects fees called quotas from its members.

Topic: The IMF, the World Bank, and the WTO

28) The IBRD part of the World Bank is set up to lend to whom and for what types of projects?

Answer: Developing nations' governments for specific development projects or major government economic policy adjustments

Topic: The IMF, the World Bank, and the WTO

29) Which round of GATT led to the formation of the WTO?

Answer: The Uruguay Round

Topic: The IMF, the World Bank, and the WTO

2.3 Regional Trade Agreements

- 1) A free trade agreement plus a common set of tariffs toward non-members is called
- A) a common market.
  - B) a customs union.
  - C) a free trade area.
  - D) an economic union.
  - E) a partial trade agreement.

Answer: B

Topic: Regional Trade Agreements

- 2) Which of the following is FALSE?
- A) A common market is more deeply integrated than an economic union.
  - B) NAFTA is an example of a free trade area.
  - C) The European Union is a deeper form of integration than NAFTA.
  - D) Common markets allow for labor mobility between participating nations.

Answer: A

Topic: Regional Trade Agreements

- 3) Which of the following is TRUE?
- A) A common market is more deeply integrated than a customs union.
  - B) The European Union is a shallower and broader form of integration than NAFTA.
  - C) NAFTA is an example of a customs union.
  - D) Customs unions require the creation of a common currency.

Answer: A

Topic: Regional Trade Agreements

- 4) Which of the following is NOT a feature of a common market?
- A) Substantial coordination of macroeconomic policies among the members
  - B) Free trade in goods and services between the members
  - C) Common external barriers to trade
  - D) Factor mobility

Answer: A

Topic: Regional Trade Agreements

- 5) Which of the following is a problem that arises when trying to classify regional trade agreements?
- A) Many agreements combine elements from different categories.
  - B) The definition of free trade area includes that of a customs union.
  - C) Some agreements include cultural issues while others do not.
  - D) The most favored nation clause includes all of them.
  - E) None of the above.

Answer: A

Topic: Regional Trade Agreements

6) With a partial trade agreement

- A) goods and services are allowed to cross boundaries without tariffs.
- B) two or more countries agree to liberalize trade in a selected group of categories.
- C) two or more countries set common tariffs toward non-members.
- D) two or more countries allow the free mobility of inputs such as labor and capital.
- E) two or more countries agree on establishing a common currency.

Answer: B

Topic: Regional Trade Agreements

7) Describe the potential benefits and the potential costs to global trade of the tremendous growth in regional trade agreements.

Answer: A regional trade agreement creates preferential treatment for nations that are participants, which violates the idea of MFN status in multilateral agreements, where nations agree to treat all participants the same. The WTO recognizes that regional agreements destroy some opportunities for trade by making non-members face higher barriers than members of the regional agreement. But it believes that they create more trade than they divert, and the regional agreements allow nations to try out arrangements that may later be adopted more broadly.

2.4 The Role of International Economic Institutions

1) One reason markets may fail to provide the optimal quantity of public goods is the problem of

- A) determining what the public wants.
- B) nontariff barriers.
- C) nondiscrimination.
- D) free riders.
- E) economic integration.

Answer: D

Topic: The Role of International Economic Institutions

2) If a good or service does not get used up as it is consumed, then it is said to be

- A) nonexcludable.
- B) nonrival.
- C) nondiscrimination.
- D) nonconsumable.
- E) None of the above.

Answer: B

Topic: The Role of International Economic Institutions

- 3) An important function of international institutions during times of crisis is to
- A) make goods nonrival.
  - B) make goods nonexcludable.
  - C) prevent free riding.
  - D) prevent nondiscrimination.
  - E) encourage free riding.

Answer: C

Topic: The Role of International Economic Institutions

- 4) Which multilateral institution serves as the lender of last resort?

Answer: The IMF

2.5 Criticism of International Institutions

- 1) Which of the following is NOT a criticism of international institutions such as the IMF, the World Bank, or the WTO?

- A) They lack openness in their decision-making process.
- B) They violate national sovereignty by imposing unwanted domestic policies.
- C) They fail to understand the effects of their policies on the vulnerable.
- D) Their decision making is biased in favor of underdeveloped nations and against the interests of nations already industrialized.
- E) They ignore potentially large adjustment costs for developing nations of implementing their policies.

Answer: D

Topic: Criticism of International Institutions

- 2) Which of the following criticisms is NOT directed to the IMF?

- A) It lacks openness in its decision-making process.
- B) It serves the interests of wealthier countries.
- C) It creates a free-riding problem.
- D) It violates national sovereignty.
- E) It is heavily bureaucratic and at times gives harmful advice.

Answer: C

Topic: Criticism of International Institutions

3) Which of the following is FALSE?

- A) National sovereignty limits outsiders' ability to change the trade laws and practices of individual nation states.
- B) Because of international recognition of national sovereignty, individual nations are unaffected by global trade and capital flows.
- C) Foreign investors may not have a legal right to impose policies on a nation state, but the nation state may still experience consequences of poor policies.
- D) Because trade policies are laws of individual nations, it is difficult for other nations and international organizations to force changes on unwilling nation states.

Answer: B

Topic: Criticism of International Institutions

4) Which of the following is FALSE about the International Monetary Fund (IMF)?

- A) The IMF was created after the Bretton Woods Conference to help to maintain the international fixed exchange rate system that was introduced.
- B) The IMF lends to national governments, initially to maintain the fixed exchange rate system, and today to deal with debt or currency crises.
- C) Multinational corporations can get IMF loans if they agree to invest in economies that are internationally perceived as risky and otherwise unlikely to receive direct foreign investment.
- D) One of the criticisms of the IMF and other international governmental organizations that deal with the global economy is that their decision making may be biased toward policies that favor industrialized nations.

Answer: C

Topic: Criticism of International Institutions

5) Because of the recognition internationally of the principles of national sovereignty, nations cannot be affected by the policies of other nations and international governmental organizations.

Answer: FALSE

Topic: Criticism of International Institutions

6) The majority of economists favor open capital flows.

Answer: FALSE

Topic: Criticism of International Institutions

7) Describe the criticisms about decision making at the IMF and the World Bank. Which types of policies are thought to reflect bias? What types of costs are not considered? What is the fundamental question critics raise about the operations of the international governmental economic institutions?

Answer: Voting structures at the IMF and World Bank give developed nations, and the U.S. especially, control over decision making, making it hard to delineate whose interests are being served. For example, policies favoring free capital flows and privatization of publicly owned industries are thought to reflect the biases of industrialized countries rather than overwhelming economic consensus. Implementation and adjustment costs may be much greater in developing countries because they have higher overall levels of unemployment, less diversification in their economies, and fewer resources to develop new infrastructure or to do other spending necessary to take advantage of new opportunities. Fundamentally, critics ask whether they are fostering development and economic security or generating greater economic inequality and compounding risks to vulnerable groups.
